Have you contributed this year?

In this time of major state funding cuts to institutions of higher education, we appreciate more than ever your generosity in supporting The Teachers College with your contributions to The Teachers College Fund for Excellence. We're in the business of training teachers, counselors, health professionals, and psychologists for our world and would be honored if you would become a partner with us in this endeavor. Won't you please include a check when you send us your alumni update information? We look forward to hearing from you!

The U.S. Department of Education has awarded two ESU faculty $3.8 million to establish English as a Second Language training programs in 14 Kansas school districts. Drs. Cynthia Seguin and Abdelilah Sehlaoui received the awards in the form of three grants over five years. The grants will provide tuition for teachers working toward a 15-hour ESL certificate. Teachers in the program will also receive a $1,000 stipend or a laptop computer. Classes will cover multicultural education, language assessment and evaluation, cultural awareness, and linguistics. Professors will use a combination of online classes and on-site workshops in the course of their instruction.

For more information, including a list of school districts benefitting from the grants, visit http://www.emporia.edu/news/2002-03/October/doe_esl_grants.html.

ESU's elementary education program expanding locally and regionally

Emporia State's department of early childhood/elementary teacher education is forming new partnerships that will impact its teacher education program.

The elementary education Professional Development School program added a third district to the program this fall. Americus Elementary School, in North Lyon County school district, joined elementary schools in Olathe and Emporia as PDS sites. All elementary education majors will complete their senior year in a PDS school beginning with the 2003-04 academic year.

Earlier this fall, members of the National State Teachers of the Year executive board visited the PDS program at Americus School. After their visit, Edna Rogers, president of the National State Teachers of the Year organization, wrote, "The Professional Development School program is a great model. I wish other colleges and universities could visit and see how effective it is."

Academy for Future Teachers: A Sound Investment in Our Children

The 2003 Future Teacher Academy at Emporia State is tentatively scheduled for July 6-10. But while planning must get underway now, a supplemental funding source has yet to be identified to make next summer's academy a reality.

Sponsored by The Teachers College and directed by the Jones Institute for Educational Excellence, the academy has graduated nearly 700 of Kansas' brightest high school juniors and seniors over 14 summers. Since 1989, when the first academy had the honor of receiving the AASCU Christa McAuliffe Showcase for Excellence Award, the Future Teacher Academy at ESU has provided select students with the opportunity to learn more about the challenges and rewards of teaching and has become recognized as an established and highly respected training opportunity for students throughout the state of Kansas.

"This is an excellent program for recruiting our top high school students into the teaching

News from the Departments

CERP: Counselor Education & Rehabilitation Programs 620-341-5220

Judy Sasser is coordinating the use of a therapy dog, Zorro, into the school counseling program. Zorro is currently being socialized and at 18 months will be trained along with Dr. Sasser to work therapeutically with children and adults.

Wendy Enochs, assistant professor, passed the National Counselor Examination and was awarded the National Certified Counselor (NCC) credential by the National Board for Certified Counselors.

David Kaplan, professor and chair of CERP, has been selected for inclusion in the 2003 edition of Who's Who in America.

EC/ETE: Early Childhood/ Elementary Teacher Education 620-341-5445

Nancy Smith is completed her sabbatical during fall 2002, working with elementary teachers and students in Emporia, Kansas City, and Virginia.

Elementary reading faculty are teaching graduate reading classes for teachers in Dodge City and Garden City school districts this year.

Beth Schmar, instructor, won the Outstanding Graduate Student Award in the College of Education at Kansas State University.

Summer Courses: The department is offering over a dozen summer courses in a modified on-line format suitable for renewing teaching licenses and professional development. These courses, referred to as modules, can offer you the flexibility of working from organized assignments on your own schedule and communicating with the instructor via email. Many assignments can be adjusted to the student's particular teaching level and interests. Each course is 3 graduate credits. Call the department or email hoganeil@emporia.edu to find out more information.

HPER: Health, Physical Education, & Recreation 620-341-5926

Two ESU students are serving as officers in the student section of the Kansas Association of Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Dance (KAHPERD): Jodie Leiss, president; Jen Thomas, chair.

Emporia State will host the next KAHPERD convention in November 2003.

The HPER department was chosen as the first testing site of the OM30 reaction time instrument for medical instruments company in Lawrence. Dr. Mike Butler, Nikki Runnebaum, Tom Peterson, and Mark Padfield are conducting Beta testing on all athletes.

Faculty members Joan Brewer, Joella Mehrhof, and Mike Butler were asked to serve as consultants to the Emporia U.S.D. 253 physical education program which received a Physical Education for Progress grant.

HPER has instituted a Hall of Honor to recognize distinguished alumni of the HPER programs. The first alumni will be inducted in April 2003.

An Assessment Workshop, directed by Joella Mehrhof, will take place on March 10, 2003.

Rhonda Holt and Bob Fitzpatrick will be the presenters.

Summer Courses: HPER will be offering four outstanding workshops next summer: Physical Essentials (May 28-29), Health Kick (June 17-18), Physical Focus (June 19-20), and Physical Education Cultural Tour (Aug 1). For more information, contact Kathy Ermiler.

IDT: Instructional Design & Technology 620-341-6022

Two years after officially putting its entire graduate program online, IDT is now experiencing exploding enrollment with over 100 students already in the program and is in the process of proposing a fully online doctoral degree program at ESU.

Professors in IDT recently completed the "Using Office in the Classroom" instructional series for Corwin Press. The three books, available from Amazon.com, are titled "Using Word in the Classroom," "Using Excel in the Classroom," and "Using PowerPoint in the Classroom."

Two IDT Professors are Certified Palm Trainers and are teaming up with others in the department to work on a book, "Using Palms in the Classroom."

Directors of national and state projects housed in JIEE presented updated information to Kansas' Senate Legislative Education Planning Committee on October 11. Presentations included Linda Hazel, discussing candidate preparation and results of going through the Great Plains Center for National Teacher Certification; Connie Briggs, presenting the effectiveness of teachers to catch the lowest performing 20% of first graders and bringing them to the level of their peers through the Reading Recovery program; and Scott Waters, offering information and highlights from the 2002 Kansas Future Teacher Academy for high school students.

Ian Jukes, an educator and speaker on technology's impact on our society, visited as the Jones Distinguished Lecturer on October 15. More than 150 people from the ESU, education, and business communities attended all three sessions of the event, coordinated by JIEE, and jointly sponsored by ESU's Department of Instructional Design & Technology and the School of Library & Information Management, with support by Phi Delta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi.

On November 13, Keith Geiger, the 2001-02 Jones Distinguished Professor, presented his study, An Overview of International Education at Colleges and Universities in Kansas, to the Kansas Board of Regents Joint Council of Chief Academic Officers.

Teachers achieve national certification

Thirty-seven Kansas teachers achieved National Board Certification in 2002 according to an announcement in November by the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS) in Arlington, Virginia. That brings the total of National Board Certified Teachers (NBCTs) in Kansas to 109.

The number of NBCTs in Kansas has increased every year since 1995, the year that ESU permanently established the Great Plains Center for National Teacher Certification and expanded its program of professional support for National Board candidates. It is the first and only program of professional support in Kansas for National Board candidates that has been recognized and approved by both the NBPTS and the Kansas Board of Regents.

"Emporia State began as a field-test site for NBPTS in 1993," said Linda Hazel, director of the Great Plains Center housed in the Jones Institute for Educational Excellence. "When field testing ended in 1995, we knew it was important to continue offering professional mentoring and support for teachers going through the NBC process because on-going feedback from our candidates indicated that for nearly all of them, going through the process had made them better teachers whether or not they had achieved National Board Certification. That was powerful."

Teachers who become candidates for national certification undergo a rigorous and extensive assessment of their classroom practice that includes a major focus on their ability to impact and sustain student learning. At the end of the process, candidates are assessed by a national panel of their peers.

Achieving National Board Certification is extremely difficult, said Hazel. In fact, the national certification rate is typically only around 50%. Kansas candidates have a certification rate that is consistently above the national average, sometimes by as much as 21 percentage points.

Most of the candidates in Kansas who have gone through the process and achieved certification have participated in ESU's program of professional support throughout their candidacy, generally one to three years. Emporia States program is provided at no cost for candidates throughout Kansas.

Lori L. (Ruppelius) Hill (BSE '93), Parkville, MO, teaches kindergarten at Gashland Elementary School in the North Kansas City school district. She and her husband, Rob, have a son, Sean, 10, and a daughter Lauren, born 8/26/2002.

Wendell E. Bard (MS '94), Wray, CO, received certification in K-12 school counseling from Northwest Oklahoma State University in Alva, OK, in May 2001 and has been the counselor for South Middle School in Liberal, KS, since August 2001.

Linda S. (McClurg) Befort (BS '94), Moberly, MO, is a Parents-as-Teachers Parent Educator in Renick, MO. She married her husband, Mike, on 11/2/2001.

Christine E. (Martin) Falk (BS '95), Osage City, KS, is a speech paraprofessional in the Seaman school district in Topeka, KS. She was married 7/27/2002.

Michael E. Lewis (BS '95), Parsons, KS, has been a conservation officer (game warden) since 2000 for the Kansas Department of Wildlife and Parks covering Labette, Neosho, and Cherokee counties. He and his wife, Kate Ireland, were married 4/18/2001, and have a daughter, Chelsea Lynn, born 10/24/98.

Jennifer J. (Brown) Mantz (BS '95, MS '99), Sterling, KS, is the inter-related teacher for Sterling Middle and High School.

Teresa L. Clouch (MS '96), Lawrence, KS, is in her third year in the higher education doctoral program at the University of Kansas.

Kelly D. Emig (BFA '96, MS '98), Parkville, MO, is the director of adult education and a GED examiner for Kansas City Kansas Community College and is a member of the ESU Alumni Board of Directors.

Deyna M. (Johnston) Smith (BA '96), Derby, KS, has a son, Hayden Jaykob, born 5/29/2002.

Heather R. (Stedman) Ruiz (BSE '96), Lansing, KS, teaches first grade in the Fort Leavenworth school district. She and her husband, John, celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary 6/14/2002.

profession when they might be sitting on the fence trying to make that decision," said Scott Waters, a professor in The Teachers College and director of the academy. "It's also a proven tool for recruiting those same students into our top-rated teacher education program where we know they'll get the well-rounded, quality training necessary for becoming competent teachers."

Funding for the academies from 1990 to 2000 was generously provided by the R.D. and Joan Dale (McClain, BSE '66) Hubbard Foundation of Ruidoso, New Mexico. Funding for the 2002 academy was provided by the State of Kansas and a recruitment and retention grant from the Kansas State Department of Education. Since 2001, the academy has been funded in part by the Advancement of Teaching & Learning endowment from the W.S. & E.C.
