Guest Authors

Steve Sheinkin lives with his wife, Rachel, and their two young children in Saratoga Springs, New York. Steve writes, “We're right down the road from the Saratoga National Historical Park, the site of Benedict Arnold's greatest - and last - victory in an American uniform. But that's not why I moved here. Honestly.” According to Steve on his website, “Yes, it's true, I used to write history textbooks. Now I try to write history books that people will actually read voluntarily.” Please see Steve’s entire bio and many more details on his website.

Deborah Hopkinson lives in West Linn, Oregon. According to Deborah’s website, “Deborah is the author of more than 45 books for young readers including picture books, short fiction, and nonfiction. Her historical fiction picture books often illuminate the lives of ordinary people or forgotten figures in history. She has won the SCBWI Golden Kite Award for picture book text twice, and in 2013 received both a YALSA Excellence in Nonfiction honor and a Robert F. Sibert Honor for Titanic, Voices from the Disaster. A frequent speaker in schools and conferences, her books help bring history alive and encourage young readers to practice critical thinking and historical thinking skills.” Please see Deborah’s website for many more details.
