Course Materials:

- Other readings will be provided to you via Canvas.

Course Description:

This course will explore victimization, responses to victimization, offender-victim relationships, violence, crime prevention and crime victim programs. Relationships to the law, sociology, psychology, and criminology will also be examined.

Course Objectives/Goals:

Students who successfully complete this course will develop an understanding of

- The role of victimology as a social science;
- The psychological impact of a crime on the victim;
- The victim’s role in the victim-offender relationship and in the criminal justice system;
- The financial impact of the crime on the victim;
- The victim’s rights in the criminal justice system and in society;
- The future of criminal justice and social policy as they relate to victims.
Student Learning Outcomes:
Based on the Course Objectives, the following Student Learning Outcomes apply to this course. All assignments work toward a common goal: meeting Student Learning Objectives that develop specific cognitive operations (brain functioning) within certain categories of learning. Note that many assignments address several SLOs.

Course Requirements:
This course challenges us to think critically and scientifically about our social world. When I say challenge, that is exactly what I mean. Learning to step outside of ourselves and see our world with new eyes (the Sociological Imagination) is extremely difficult. At times it may even be uncomfortable and may even tread on personal practices or beliefs, or may trigger memories of traumatic events for some. We will also explore where we fit within society and what responsibilities we have as ethical members of society. I expect members of this class to work together as a conscientious learning team. To that end, three requirements are fundamental for this class:

1. Respect each other. Your classmates can and will have different ideas, viewpoints, personal lives, etc. You don’t have to agree with everyone around you, but you are required to disagree in an adult and academic manner. Students who are rude, snide, or abusive to their classmates or who make “-ist” comments (i.e. racist, sexist, etc.) will be asked to leave immediately.

2. Make your point using scientific logic/proof. Sociology is a scientific discipline, therefore arguments and counterarguments should be well thought out and based on scientific observation. Arguments and counterarguments must be based on reliable scientific publications and students are expected to provide those references in or shortly after class in order to participate in discussion. Students are encouraged to bring laptops, etc. to class (for academic use only) to augment scientific class discussion. Students are expected to keep purely personal viewpoints to themselves; personal opinion is important to individuals, but in this class we are learning about what Sociologists have to say about issues.

3. Refute points using scientific logic/proof. For any scientific “law,” we can almost always find an exception to the rule. The exception, however, does not disprove the rule – it is simply an exception. For that reason, although personal experience can often lend insight to class discussion, at times it is simply one’s personal experience. I ask that students try to understand the difference and to refrain from sharing personal experience unless it can be linked in some way to the experience of others. For example, because you were not raised within a racist environment does not mean that racism no longer exists. Etc.

In other words, students are expected to engage with course material as a science and respect one another’s participation in that engagement 😊

ASSIGNMENTS

All assignments in this course have been carefully constructed to meet both department and course-specific student learning outcomes. Individual grades are based on the quality of your work and not on your “ability” or “effort.” You are expected to fully complete assignments. Failure to meet all requirements for an assignment will not receive partial credit; failing to finish an assignment is the same as not submitting the assignment at all.

All assignments must be submitted through Canvas. If you submit a file, make sure that your file has fully uploaded and that it opens correctly, as corrupt files will not be accepted. A corrupt file will be counted as a zero and you will have to use tokens to resubmit. If you have questions about an assignment, however, you should email me.

You may work ahead in the course. Some assignments are “gates” and must be completed before other assignments will open. Keep in mind that if you work ahead, you will need to go back and respond to other students to get full credit. I will not assign grades to incomplete assignments until the due date has passed.

Adult Learning Assignments: 10 points each

Relevant Student Learning Outcome: Reflect on learning effort and strategies to improve future performance

Simply put, not everyone comes to college knowing how to be a successful college student. Students come from... a variety of backgrounds and may not have learned the skills necessary to be successful. Sometimes students think that a college class will be “easy,” but even in the event the course content itself is not challenging, being successful in a college course demands good time management skills and the ability to work on one’s own. You will be disappointed if you are looking for an “easy A” for little effort in this class. Adult Learning Assignments are required and are intended to teach skills that can, if you apply them properly, help you be successful in college. They are low-stakes (pass/fail), but must be completed fully. Adult Learning Assignments are “gated” assignments, which means that when you satisfactorily complete the assignment, further course material becomes available. For example, you will not be able to access the Final Evaluation assignment if you do not first complete the Final Planning assignment. Successful completion of adult learning assignments should improve your understanding of course and assignment expectations and, if you make use of what you learn, should result in higher scores.

Participate and Post Discussion Posts: 25 points each

Relevant Student Learning Outcomes: Connect course material to the lived experience of self, others, and current events; Apply course concepts to everyday life and/or other courses; Critically examine and apply sociological research to course material, demonstrating written communication skills.

Participate and Post Assignments require you to apply course material to your lived experience, which means that these assignments often require a significant time commitment and/or may require you to complete an activity. Students are expected to (1) complete the activity, (2) adequately write about the activity, answering the questions, and (3) respond in a meaningful way to at least one other student’s post (“I agree” will not earn points). Participate and Post Assignments are worth 25 points each, including your response to another student. Partial credit will not be given for incomplete posts or failure to respond to another student.

Testing: Quizzes 5 pts each (except for Syllabus Quiz), Exam 100 pts.

Relevant Student Learning Outcomes: an understanding of basic concepts, theories, and research related to the course. Students will complete both quizzes and exams. Quizzes and exams will be graded based on points earned.

- Quizzes:
  - Weekly, for every week that includes readings.
  - Points: 5 questions/points per quiz, randomly selected from a larger question bank.
  - Open-book, open-note, untimed, taken on Canvas.
  - Reading guides have been provided for each quiz. If you can answer the reading guide questions, you should be in a good position to answer the questions well.

- Exams
  - One comprehensive Final Exam.
  - Based on random selection of full stock of questions from quizzes.
  - Total points possible: 100.
  - Closed-book, timed, taken on Canvas.

Extra Credit – Aside from “tokens,” no extra credit will be offered. Extra credit will absolutely NOT be offered on a case-by-case basis.

At the beginning of the semester every student has five “tokens” that can be redeemed as follows:

- Re-open one quiz – 1 token
- Grade/Re-Grade one late Adult Learning assignment – 1 token
- Grade/Re-Grade one participate and post – 1 token
- Re-take the final exam within 24 hours of the due date/time, one time only – 2 tokens

In order to use tokens, you must first do the work. For example, if you forget to submit a participate and post, you can submit the post late, and then email me to tell me you want to use tokens and I will “re-grade” it. If you still haven’t written a message board post after you ask me to re-grade it, and the assignment is blank, then you will still receive a zero. Tokens do not “replace” assignments; they allow for revision and re-grading.
At the end of the semester, tokens can be redeemed for 2 extra credit points, which will count toward the graded portion of class assessment (such as message board posts and exams) for a possible total of 10 extra credit points. If you have tokens left at the end of the semester, you and I will discuss where to apply your extra credit.

Tokens cannot be earned or transferred. No more than 5 tokens per student will be allowed.

Assessment/Grades:

Students sometimes mistakenly believe that “effort” or “ability” is all that is needed in order to do well in a college course. Grades in college courses are based on the quality of a student’s work as well as quantity (see “What Grades Mean in College” in Modules). An “A” is work that is far above average in quality, which is why we say that someone has “brought his/her A game.”

Thus grades in this course are dependent both on the quality and the quantity of work a student submits.

CLASS POLICIES

Canvas. All course information and materials (such as due dates, slides, assignment sheets, and tests) will be posted on Canvas. It is your responsibility to check Canvas on a regular basis so that you can keep up with course requirements.

All assignments must be uploaded to Canvas. With the exception of quizzes and exams, which have a definitive date and time they will become unavailable, I have left assignments open. I have done this so that even if you are turning your work in late or are revising, you can still upload it to the assignment on Canvas.

Students should be aware that technology sometimes fails, and should plan for it. This means that submitting assignments at the last minute is not a good idea. Also, I am not tech support – I’m just an end user, like you. If you have a technical issue with Canvas, contact the Help Desk at 877-341-5555 or helpdesk@emporia.edu as soon as you encounter the problem. Only email me about the problem if it appears likely to disrupt your ability to submit an assignment on time. You may wish to send a “backup” copy of the assignment to the course backup email: emporiasociologybackups@gmail.com. Be sure to follow the submission guidelines: include (1) your name, (2) the course you are in, and (3) the assignment name in the subject line, AND send the email before the assignment deadline, AND make sure you attach the file. I will not grade from this email but it at least can show that you submitted the completed assignment on time.
Class Attendance. Class attendance is important; much of our class depends on participation and discussion. In addition, attendance is required for students to do in-class work and gain participation points. However, attendance will not be scored.

Electronics. I have two basic rules for electronics in class: don’t disturb other students, and don’t be disrespectful of me or your fellow students. If you turn off your cell phone ringer, stow your headphones and mp3 player and want to use your laptop to take notes, we should be fine. Students who can’t observe these simple rules will be asked to leave the room so that others aren’t disturbed. Playing games during class is disrespectful and you will be asked to leave.

Missing Class: If you must miss class it is your responsibility to get notes and other information from students in your class. I recommend getting that information from more than one person to get more than one viewpoint. You may exchange tokens for missed work, but that is all. Once you run out of tokens, make-up work will not be accepted. Do not email your instructor asking what you missed, if you missed anything important, or if you can make up work.

Lengthy Illness: If you experience an extended illness and cannot complete course material, I strongly encourage you to contact Student Affairs and we will work together to determine the best approach, either for you to continue the course or withdraw from the course.

Late Assignments and Make-up Work. See “Missing Classes” above.

Office Hours and Conferences. I am always happy to meet with students; please feel free to contact me if you are confused or need help. Office hours are noted at the top of the Course Policy Statement.

Email: Before you email me for the first time, please review the “Email Etiquette” document in the Course Documents section of Canvas Modules. Remember that the university is a place to practice professional behavior; making certain that your email to your instructor is professional is good practice.

You are welcome to email me at any time: I usually respond to email fairly quickly. Generally speaking, you can expect a response from me within a couple of days Monday-Friday between 8 am – 5 pm. Often I will respond during evenings and weekends as well, but this is NOT guaranteed. Therefore, you should plan ahead to be sure that you can get your questions answered ahead of time. If you wait until late at night or on the weekend to start an assignment and you run into problems, you may very well not get your questions answered before an assignment is due. As the saying goes, “poor planning on your part does not constitute an emergency on my part.”

Each semester I have between 150-200 students across four courses. If you email me, make sure that you NEED to email me; I just won’t answer if the answer can easily be found by checking the syllabus, schedule, Canvas, or an email I’ve already sent out to the entire class. I will always prioritize students with significant questions or emergencies; this makes the best use of my time and allows me to quickly respond to students with serious questions/problems. In other words, it makes me a better teacher.

Grades. This course uses a standard scale: A=90% and above, B=80-89%, C=70-79%, D=60-69%, F=59% and lower. Grades will be recorded promptly on Canvas. Students should check Canvas and report any inaccuracies as soon as possible. Sometimes I do make mistakes, and it’s much better to fix them quickly. If you have any questions about why you received a score on a specific assignment, feel free to email me to set up a meeting to discuss your grade. It is a violation of student privacy (FERPA) to discuss specific grade via email, so for distance students we may need to set up a time for a phone call.

Note that I do not grade on the basis of need. If you need a certain grade out of the class, start planning from the beginning of the semester. Do not ask me to give you extra credit or to revise work at the end of the semester, or otherwise ask for your grade to be raised.

Grade Disputes: If you believe that I have graded a course assignment in error, you may dispute your grade. To do so, I must receive a written memo from you within a week of when I assign the grade for weeks 1-14 and... within two days for weeks 15-finals. The memo must detail specifically why the assignment should receive a different grade. Explain how the assignment met all of the requirements or how the answer as written (and not based on what could be inferred from what was written) addressed the question. Please note that the time frame begins when I assign a grade and not when you notice the grade.

Contesting a Final Grade: If you believe that your final grade was not appropriate to the work that you completed in this course, you may appeal your grade through the Academic Appeals process. This process is determined by the University and cannot be circumvented by, for example, going to the highest ranking administrator you can speak to. More detailed information about appealing your final grade can be found in the student handbook, but the general process is laid out below. Appeals must be made within 1 semester following the semester in which you took the course. All appeals are kept confidential.

1. Instructor First. Set up an appointment to meet with your instructor to discuss the issue. If the two of you can’t reach an understanding, then -
2. Department Chair Second. Request an appointment with the Department Chair, and write a letter to the Chair that details the situation. The Department Chair will check with your instructor to (1) verify that the two of you have already met and (2) collect detailed information from the instructor. The Chair will attempt to mediate a resolution between student and instructor. If the mediation fails, then -
3. Departmental Appeals Committee Third. The student may request that the Chair convene a Departmental Appeals Committee. The Committee will be made up of two faculty members and one student from the department which will review the situation and reach a decision within 20 class days. The Department Chair makes sure the decision is implemented. If the student is unhappy with the Department Committee’s decision, then -
4. College/School Dean Last. The student can appeal to the appropriate Dean of the school/college. The Departmental Appeals Committee will send all written documentation to the dean, who will create a School/College Academic Appeals Committee consisting of 3 faculty members and 2 students. This Committee votes and submits a recommendation to the Dean, who makes a final decision that cannot be appealed.

Incompletes. A grade of incomplete will be considered only under extraordinary (emergency) circumstances; an expected incomplete must be arranged prior to the end of the semester. In no case will an incomplete be given to a student who simply fails to attend class and complete assignments. Per university policy, a student must be passing the course in order to be given an incomplete.

Cheating/Academic Dishonesty: Students are expected to adhere to the University’s Academic Dishonesty policy (see below).

Student rights. Information regarding your rights and responsibilities may be found in the undergraduate general catalog. If you have any condition, such as physical or learning disabilities, which will make it difficult for you to carry out the work as outlined, and/or require special accommodations, please notify me during the first two weeks of class.

Violence based on Gender/Sex: Title IX makes it clear that violence and harassment based on sex and gender are Civil Rights offenses subject to the same kinds of accountability and the same kinds of support applied to offenses against other protected categories such as race, national origin, etc. If you or someone you know has been harassed or assaulted, you can find the appropriate resources here: http://www.emporia.edu/student-wellness/counseling-services/thrive/index.html.

Emporia State University Policies

Disability Services: Emporia State University will make reasonable accommodations for persons with documented disabilities. Students need to contact the Director of Disability Services and the professor as early in the semester as possible to ensure that classroom and academic accommodations are implemented in a timely fashion. All communication between students, Disability Services, and the professor will be strictly confidential.
3D.0701 Academic Dishonesty Policy (FSB 95002 approved by President 1/31/96; FSB 03002 passed by Faculty Senate 1/20/04; approved by President 2/9/04; FSB 05002 passed by Faculty Senate 1/17/06; approved by President 2/7/06; title update approved by President of the Faculty 8/22/2010; FSB 10007 passed by Faculty Senate 3/15/2011; approved by President 3/21/2011): Academic dishonesty, a basis for disciplinary action, includes but is not limited to activities such as cheating and plagiarism (presenting as one’s own the intellectual or creative accomplishments of another without giving credit to the source or sources). The faculty member in whose course or under whose tutelage an act of academic dishonesty occurs has the option of failing the student for the academic hours in question, or for and components or requirements for that course. Departments, schools, and colleges may have provisions for more severe penalties. Emporia State University may impose penalties for academic dishonesty up to and including expulsion from the student’s major or from the University. In addition, acts of academic dishonesty shall be grounds to deny admission to a department or program. In addition to the penalties above, the faculty member shall notify in writing his/her department chair and the registrar of the infraction. The department chair shall forward a report of the infraction to the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Life. The registrar shall block the student from withdrawing from the course to avoid the penalties that result from the infraction. The Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Life shall act as the record keeper for student academic infractions. The Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Life will notify the student in writing that an infraction has been reported and inform the student of the right to appeal and of the appropriate appeal procedures. The Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Life shall notify the student, the department chair, and the faculty member that initiated the proceedings, of any additional action taken beyond those already imposed by the faculty member. Should a single infraction be so egregious, or should a student have a record of multiple infractions, the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Life may impose additional penalties, including expulsion of the student from the University. The student has the right to appeal the charge of academic dishonesty (see Student Conduct section). If after an appeal it is found that the student did not commit an act of academic dishonesty, no penalties will be imposed on the student.

A chair of a department or director of a program may request from the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Life a list of all currently enrolled ESU students within that major or program who have committed acts of academic dishonesty. This request may be a standing request to be filling automatically during each semester until the request is rescinded by the chair or director. In addition, a chair of a department or director of a program may submit to the office of the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Life a list of applicants to a program or major and the chair or director may be informed if any of the applicants has committed any acts of academic dishonesty. Prior to the beginning of the next academic year, the office of the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Life shall send to the Chair of the Academic Affairs Committee of the Faculty Senate a list containing nonspecific student identifiers, such as Student 1, Student 2, etc., their specific academic infraction(s) reported to the Provost’s office, the total number of infractions that have been reported for each student, and any actions taken by the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Life.

3D.07 Student Conduct (FSB 01011 approved by President, 4/29/02): Excessive absenteeism is defined as a number of absences beyond which the faculty member has determined on his/her syllabus that a student cannot complete the course without the academic integrity of the course being compromised. Emporia State University is committed toward development of sensitive and responsible individuals and believe this goal is best achieved through a sound educational program and reasonable policies concerning student conduct, both in and out of the classroom. Operating from this concept, recognition is given to the importance of an honest approach to learning which ideally is shared by the instructor and the student. Faculty members may make the disposition of any cases of disruptive behavior, excessive absenteeism, or academic dishonesty within their classes as they deem appropriate. Following such cases, the faculty member shall make available to the chair of the department and to the office of the Vice President for Student Affairs a record of such student absenteeism or disruptive behavior and the action taken by the faculty member. (This information will be helpful in dealing with those students who may have had similar problems in other classes or departments.) If the problem is not settled between the faculty member and the student, assistance will be given from the office of the Vice President for Student Affairs. If the problem cannot be resolved at this point the student may request a hearing. This request must be in writing. If a case of dishonesty, excessive absenteeism, or disruptive behavior also involves a disagreement regarding a grade, the student may be referred to the committee which hears academic appeals. If the behavior is such that broader disciplinary action by the school/college is recommended, a hearing board shall be established by the President of the University to make disposition of the case. (In all cases of disciplinary action the office of the Vice President for Student Affairs is available for assistance.) At any point where student conduct directly interferes with the health, safety, or well being of individuals in the campus community, the University may apply sanctions or take other appropriate action. Since the University is responsible for the subsidiary duties of maintaining property, keeping records, providing living accommodations, and sponsoring a variety of nonclassroom activities, it is necessary that a climate supportive of such duties be maintained. Student status will not be a basis for any special consideration from the University when a community, state, or national law has been violated, although every effort will be made to assist with the rehabilitation of a student violating such laws. This is done by working with law enforcement or other agencies, and ordinarily further sanctions are not applied after such a case is closed. No disciplinary sanction as serious as suspension, probation, or adverse notation on permanent records (available to other than official personnel of the college) will be imposed without proper notification given to the student in writing. This notification will state the charges and will give the accused the opportunity to appear alone, or with appropriate representation before the proper committee, judicial council, court, or official. Included will be the nature and source of evidence and the encouragement for the student to present evidence in turn. Following this review final disciplinary action will be taken by the University. Students may also request that such appearance before committees, councils, courts, or officials be waived and the case be determined in conference with appropriate campus officials. The University conduct policy commits all individuals serving on any of the above named groups dealing with student problems to a code of confidence. Failure to comply may lead to sanctions from student, faculty, or administrative governing bodies, or officials. Students, faculty, and administration shall have the opportunity to participate fully in the formulation of policies and rules and their enforcement. Penalties for men and women shall be based equally; like penalties following like violations.

4E.13 Faculty Initiated Student Withdrawal (FSB 76006; FSB 95008 approved by President 5/9/96; FSB 09016 approved by President 5/3/2010): If a student's absences from class, disruptive behavior, lack of prerequisites, or academic dishonesty become detrimental to the student's progress or that of other students in the class, the faculty member may advise the student to withdraw from the class. Withdrawal may also be advised if the student is inappropriately enrolled in the class. If the faculty member chooses to withdraw the student, he/she shall attempt to notify the student in writing that a faculty initiated withdrawal is in progress. This notification will be copied to the department chair and Academic Affairs office to serve as the request for withdrawal. If efforts to contact the student have been unsuccessful, or unacknowledged, the faculty member shall then seek the aid of the Academic Affairs office in contacting the student. The Academic Affairs office shall provide the student with information about the existing appeals procedures. Upon receiving a written request for withdrawal from the faculty member, the Academic Affairs office may initiate a student withdrawal from the class. None of the above implies or states that faculty members are required to initiate any student withdrawal.

This syllabus is subject to change; changes will be announced and updated on Canvas. When in doubt, always rely on the syllabus uploaded to Canvas.
